The Fire Next Time opens with a short letter to Baldwin's fourteen-year-old nephew, James, commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation. Baldwin tells James that when he imagines the boy's face he also sees the face of his brother (James's father) and the face of his own father (James's grandfather). He points out that James's grandfather even had a similar personality to the boy's, a certain strong-willed and assertive manner that ...
